 Synopsis ***

The Narrators begin the story by guiding the company through each character's wish. Cinderella wishes to go to the King's Festival; Jack wishes his cow, Milky-White, would give him milk; and the Baker and Baker's Wife wish to have a child. Jack's Mother wishes for gold and a less foolish son. Since their cow won't produce any milk, she insists that Jack take the cow to market to sell her. Cinderella's Stepmother and her stepsisters, Florinda and Lucinda, laugh at Cinderella's wish. They ride off to the ball without Cinderella, leaving her behind in tears. After stopping at the bakery for sweets, Little Red Riding Hood prepares to travel into the woods to see her sick Granny.

At their home, The Baker and his Wife are visited by the Witch next door. She reveals that the Baker's father is the reason the couple's wish will never come true. She explains that in the past, for his pregnant mother, the Baker's father stole magical beans from the Witch's garden. To punish them, the Witch placed a curse on the family, guaranteeing none would ever bear children, including the Baker and his Wife. Once born, the Witch took the Baker's sister—a sibling he never knew existed—and hid in a tower far, far away. In order to break the spell and get his wish, the Witch tells the Baker he has three days to bring her four items: a cow as white as milk, a cape as red as blood, hair and yellow as corn, and a slipper as pure as gold. As the Baker prepares for his journey, he puts on his father's old jacket and finds six beans in the pocket.

At the grave of Cinderella's Mother, Cinderella shares her wish and is granted a beautiful dress and slippers to wear to the ball. While walking through the woods to the market, Jack encounters a Mysterious Man who says the cow is worth only a sack of beans. Little Red Riding Hood meets a Wolf who targets her grandmother and her for his next meal.

As the Baker struggles to remember the four objects on his list, his Wife persuades Jack to sell Milky-White for five of their beans. After Jack's sad farewell, the Baker's Wife tries to allay the Baker's guilt by insisting they did Jack a favor.

The Witch visits Rapunzel, at the tower where she is kept prisoner. Rapunzel's Prince sees the Witch climb Rapunzel's hair and decides to try it himself the following day.

The Baker unsuccessfully takes Little Red Riding Hood's cape. She enters her Granny's house to find the wolf in bed, pretending to be the old woman (whom he has eaten). He gobbles up Little Red Riding Hood and her Granny. After the ordeal, Little Red Riding Hood realizes how naïve she was and gives the Baker her cape as a gift for saving her life.

Will the Baker and his Wife find all four items in order to make the Witch's potion? Will Jack ever see beloved Milky White again? What happens after Cinderella's ball? Will the Princes find their maidens, and will all live Happily Ever After? It all happens when we go "Into the Woods!"
